Celebrate with us on Inauguration Day as 100 years since women won the right to vote, we have elected a woman as Vice President to the White House – and we shall toast Kamala Harris and all elected women to the House and Senate – during a victorious and historically significant nonpartisan occasion.

This shall also serve as a new LWVMC member recruitment event: please invite prospective members to this celebratory session. A welcome and brief overview of our chapter will be provided.

LWVUS President Dr. Deborah Turner

Because of this historic accomplishment, we can hear the voices of the past still resonate today: the joyful cheers of suffragists — especially our heroines of color who continued to fight for our rights after the 19th Amendment was passed, and the cries of victory from civil rights leaders who fought, bled, and died for the right to vote — many of whom were women whose voices were not always acknowledged. We can also hear the voices of the present; millions of voters, the majority of whom were women, are celebrating today because they proved that America still believes in Democracy and the importance of letting every voice be elevated, against all odds, even in the year of COVID. For “Change it is a-coming,” and the election of a woman of color to the White House is one decisive step to America’s journey towards healing.
